

Covenant of Care for Congregation and Community

As a participant in the life and ministry of Preston Hollow Presbyterian Church, I promise to follow the guidelines implemented by church leadership in order to care for members of our faith family and wider community:

- If I am ill with symptoms, I promise not to come to church activities in person.
- If I develop symptoms from the time I register for a church event, until the time of the event, I promise to stay home.
- If I believe I have been exposed to someone who is sick, I promise to stay home until I know I am not sick.
- Before I attend a PHPC activity, I promise to be mindful of my level of exposure to other households in the two weeks prior to attending a PHPC group gathering, as that increases risk for others.
- When I am at a PHPC activity, I promise to remain at least 6-feet apart from individuals outside of my immediate family.
- When I am at a PHPC activity, I promise to properly wear a cloth or surgical face mask. I understand that this means no food or drink inside the building.

I understand that these guidelines are to protect me as well as others and that by making these promises I am committing to love my neighbor as we collectively do our best to navigate COVID-19 as a faith community.
